

I'M BRAWNY (BECAUSE I DRINK POTIONS)

(Tune: My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean)

Revised lyrics © Paul Finkleman

I'm brawny because I drink potions.
I'm brawny and lift weights, you see.
I swear that I didn't take steroids,
so bring back my medals to me.

Bring back, give back,
Oh, Bring back my medals to me, to me.
Bring back, bring back
Oh, bring back my medals to me.

I once weighed a hundred and sixty.
In five months, I'm two forty three.
They say I took pills as a shortcut,
and took back my medals from me!

CHORUS

My chest hair is now disappearing.
I've acne though I'm thirty three.
My gonads are smaller than marbles, and
My voice is now changing on me.

Bring back, give back,
Oh, Bring back my body to me, to me.
Bring back, bring back
Oh, bring back my body to me.

I'm brawny because I drink potions.
I'm brawny and lift weights, you see.
I swear that I thought those were vitamins that my trainer injected in me. Oh . . . CHORUS
